

Campus Wide Elections Today

Twenty Nine Vie For Position On Key

Elections will be held today on a campus wide basis for positions on the Scarlet Key Society.

Of late the fame of the Key has spread and the possibility of founding a similar society has been considered by other Canadian universities, in particular Toronto Varsity. The Garnet Key, founded last year at Sir George Williams College, is patterned on the Key.

Fifteen Elected

In today's elections twenty-nine candidates will vie for the fifteen positions. In Commerce Group A, three of the following will be elected; Nick Asimakopulos, Martin Blatt, Seymour Cramer, Dan Gold and John Wallace.

In Group A of Arts and Science; Tony Aspler; Phil Belitsky; Mike Dodman; Morris Fish; Dave Millman; Eric Rennert and Hugh Walker will contest the four positions. Law will place two of the following; Morton Bessner; Jean DeBrabant; and Henri Lafleur; while in Architecture either Vernon MacFawn or Wilf Lamb will be successful.

Four Plumbers

In Group A of Engineering, four of the following will be selected; Peter Baird; Al Bergel; John Blachford; George Desjardins, John Finch and Mike French. In Group B two of the following will be chosen; Don Brennan; Bill Hutchison; John Roland and Giulio Venezian.

Dentistry will place either Dominic Santarra or William Pepin on the Scarlet Key, in Group A. Nine candidates, representing Commerce B, Arts & Science B, and Medicine, have been acclaimed to the Key.

Voting will take place in the advertised places from 9 am-4 pm. Presentation of the Student's identity card is necessary, before casting a vote.

Distinguished Poet Addresses McGill

Robert Frost, lauded by editor and critic Louis Untermeyer as "the greatest American poet of his time" will be at McGill for one night, Monday Dec. 9, to read and discuss some of the poetry that has made him famous.

His appearance, in Moyse Hall, will be open to all students free of charge.

Second Delegate Slated For USA

Astrid Evans, a fourth year Arts student, will be a McGill representative at the Ninth Student Conference on United States Affairs which begins today at West Point, New York.

The conference will this year discuss "The National Security Policy of the United States".

In yesterday's Daily article on the West Point conference, Miss Evans' name was not mentioned due to the fact that it was inadvertently omitted in the West Point press release.

Roy Heenan is the other McGill delegate to the conference.

Politicians Stage Session To Expound On Education

The Model Parliament which was elected last week will be in session commencing at 8 pm in the Union Ballroom tonight. The Liberal majority will be opposed by the Progressive Conservatives and a lone independent. Guest speakers will be Claude Richardson and Heath Nelson McQuarrie, both federal members of parliament.

There is an equally prominent list of politicians who are intended to speak, but who were unable to Kierans, director of the McGill School of Commerce.

Mr. MacQuarrie is a Member of Parliament for Queens, (Prince Edward Island) and has attended and held positions at many Canadian universities, including McGill. He began his political career in Brandon, Manitoba, where he was president of the Board of School Trustees, the Brandon Progressive Conservative Association, and secretary of the Brandon Souris Association in 1954-55.

First Elected

He was first elected to the House of Commons last June in the general election. Since then Mr. MacQuarrie has been appointed Parliamentary Observer to the United Nations General Assembly, New York. He will be in the official capacity of a Member of Parliament for the Progressive Conservative Party.

Claude Richardson will be the Speaker for the House. Mr. Richardson is well known to Montrealers as his constituency, St. Lawrence-St. George, is in the heart of the city and includes the financial district, and the whole area around McGill University. He has had an extremely diversified career in the fields of education, politics, and law. He was educated in Acadia and Dalhousie Universities, and in his particular field, that of taxation law, he has lectured at the New York Institute of Taxation and founded a taxation law course at McGill. He was also a Queen's Counsel for the province of Quebec. Mr. Richardson is a Liberal.

The parliament will be opened by a tabling of the bill which in come at the last minute for various reasons. These include Louis Rene Beaudoin, Member of Parliament for Vaudreuil-Soulanges and ex-speaker of the House of Commons, Leon Crestohl, Liberal M.P. for Montreal-Cartier, and Professor

Claude S. Richardson, MP

Bishop Presents Lecture On The Church Of India

Bishop Herbert Wilkinson of Amritsar, North India, is speaking at 5 pm today in the Walter Stewart Room of the Union.

Presented by the Canterbury Club as part of its "Bishops Series", Bishop Wilkinson will be talking on "The Church Crisis in India." A world-famous figure in the Christian Church, the Bishop has been a witness during the past ten years to the growth of India as an independent state.

Growing nationalism has created increasing antipathy to the Western-centred Church, and the Church has had to seek new policies. In this difficult missionary area the Churches have been drawn together, resulting in a plan for Church union. This plan is to be presented to the Lambeth Conference next year.

A movement for Church Union in Canada is presently being discussed, a matter which came up after the successful reunion in South India several years ago. Bishop Wilkinson is one of the foremost authorities on the subject.

The Most Rev. Philip Carrington, the Archbishop of Quebec, will give his annual talk on Monday at 5 pm in the Union. He will be speaking on "The Person of Christ."

Representatives To Be Voted To S.E.C.

Eight new undergraduate representatives are to be elected to complete the 16 member S.E.C. They and the two representatives already acclaimed for the Faculties of Dentistry, Music & Divinity, Herman Zloklikovits and George Tetenburg respectively, are to take office on January 1.

To be Chosen

Two representatives are to be elected for the Faculty of Arts and Science and one each for the Faculties and Schools of Commerce, Engineering, Architecture, Medicine, Law and Phys. Ed., Physio. & Graduate Nurses. The system of voting will be that introduced at the recent Referendum.

The Women's Union reports the acclamation of Elaine Nadler as First Year Member at Large, and of Mary Ogden as Resident Member at Large. This announcement followed the withdrawal of one of the candidates, Barbara Leden.

Candidates

Applicants for election are: in the Faculty of Arts & Science, Morris Fish, Donna Irony and Alick Ryder; in the School of Commerce, Nick Asimakopulos, Seymour Cramer and Myer Signer; in the Faculty of Engineering, George Desjardins, Donald Ferrier and Maurice Leblanc; in the School of Architecture, Sydney Godel, Brian Hall and Matthias Welchner; in the Faculty of Medicine, James Butler and Fred Lowy; in the Faculty of Law, John Dawson, Jean Brabant, David Franklin and Anthony Lafleur; and in the Schools of Phys. Ed., Physio & Graduate Nurses, Claire Hudson and Marjorie Wyllie.

Scribes Compete In Daily Contest

The deadline for the Literary Contest, sponsored by the McGill Daily, falls this Friday, December 6. All aspiring hackers, writers and ballad-mongers are asked to leave their select efforts with George at the Union Tuck Shop by this date.

Enticing awards are held out to spur on those who may possess a mercenary twist. First prize of $10 would lift the loftiest soul to greater heights. The second prize, generously donated by the McGill Book Store, is a book to the value of $5. This is the first occasion upon which this annual competition has offered a second prize.

"The judges for the Literary Contest have been selected but their names have not been released for publication," Lee Levitan Features Editor of the Daily, reported today.

Limits in wordlength for the competition are as follows; essays, one thousand words; short stories, fifteen hundred words; and poems, up to and including one hundred lines.

Selected literary works from among the entered efforts will be published in the Daily's gigantic Christmas issue, and in the Daily Review.

McGill Medwives Hold Gala Dance

The McGill Medical Wives' club is holding its Annual Dance Saturday, December 7, in the Ball Room of the Union. Mike Dodman's Orchestra will provide the music from 8:30 till midnight.

At 10 pm a floor show will be presented which will fit in with the theme of the dance, "Gala Horizons". The grand finale will be a Can-Can, performed complete with cartwheels!

The dance is open to Medical wives and their friends only and a donation of two dollars will be requested. Last year's profits went to the Montreal Hospital toward the purchase of play equipment.

ARTS AND SCIENCE— ELECT TWO

Morris Fish

To fulfill its purposes, the S.E.C. must be brought into closer contact with the student body. I shall therefore encourage: 1) Open applications for executive positions, 2) Open S.E.C. meetings whenever possible.

3) Closer contact between the SEC and ASUS. 4) Suggestions and opinions by students of our faculty on matters which are or should be the subject of SEC discussion.

Morris Fish

Pen Sketch

One rarely finds, in addition to academic success, the distinction in extra-curricular activities which the following records reveal.

1955-56: McGill Delegate, Intercollegiate Conference on World Affairs, University of Toronto; University Model Parliament; McGill Security Council; Intermediate Basketball Team.

1956-57: Chairman, University Model Parliaments; Intercollegiate Debating Team; Executive, United Nations Club; Delegate, International Affairs Conference.

1957-58: Intercollegiate Debating team; Intercollegiate Athletics Council; Vice-President, United Nations Club; Executive, McGill Debating Union; Chairman Outside Athletics Committee.

This brief summary makes it apparent that Morris Fish is a capable and experienced executive. Equally important, it discloses, in addition to executive proficiency, a record of ACTIVE PARTICIPATION in a wide range of extra-curricular activities.

Because Morris possess an indispensable and unique understanding of campus problems, we enthusiastically recommend him as Arts and Science representative to the S.E.C.

Donna Irony

Having attended SEC meetings since September, I am familiar with the limitations and scope each member has to implement his/her platform. Therefore, I will promise no more than to 1) promote and protect ASUS interests on Council, 2) try to bring Women's Union activities and organizations closer to those of the Student's Society, achieving more strength for both through this unity, 3) promote publicity to make students feel more a part of the government which they support.

Donna Irony

Pen Sketch

Donna is an Honours student, B.A. III. A Canadian resident (U.S. citizen), she completed high school in New York City.

Since coming to McGill she has participated in a wide range of activities and has been a Daily desk editor and News features Editor, and Students' Directory Editor.

This year she is: 1) Daily Associate Editor, 2) Chairman of the forthcoming Canadian University Press conference, 3) ASUS executive member, 4) Member of MCWA executive, 5) Layout Editor of the McGill Annual, 6) SEC reporter for the Daily.

As Council reporter she has gained experience that would be invaluable to her as a member of the SEC. She also has firsthand knowledge of almost all phases of campus life. For these reasons we heartily endorse her for election as A&S SEC representative.

Alick Ryder

The ultimate answer to most of our problems is a new Union, however, an immediate answer can be found in closer contact between the undergraduates Faculties and the SEC. By strengthening the ties between our faculties and the SEC itself. This can be done by closer cooperation between the representatives and the ASUS thus enabling the students to have a better working knowledge of the counsel which in turn would be better informed as to student opinion.

These I feel are the basic aims and responsibilities of a representative to his faculty.

Alick Ryder

Pen Sketch

Since coming to McGill, Alick's varied activities have served to illustrate his interest in campus affairs. Having worked on Winter Carnival in 1955-56, he was appointed to the Carnival Executive in 1956-57 when he was also a member of the Freshman Reception Executive. In recognition of these activities he was elected last year to the Scarlet Key from Arts and Science. In addition to this, he is a member of the New Union Committee and President of McGill's Sailing Club.

On the basis of his interest and experience we recommend Alick most highly as S.E.C. representative for Arts & Science.

ENGINEERING— ELECT TWO

George Desjardins

In view of the fact that impossible election promises are as easily discontinued as they are made it is my policy to present a feasible and beneficial platform.

If elected I will:

(1) Encourage the building of a new McGill Union, (2) Make sure that the Engineering Undergraduate Society gets fair consideration on the Dates Committee, (3) Bring before the S.E.C. the instigation of 2 E.U. S. representatives on the S.E.C., (4) Investigate the student parking situation, (5) Investigate the possibilities of an all-faculty-wide "Proctor" system freshman reception. (6) To maintain the distinctive name of Engineering and represent its students to the best of my ability.

George Desjardins

Pen Sketch

We the undersigned, would like to see George Desjardins elected representative for the following reasons:

Donald Ferrier

As your representative, I will strive for unity and strength in the S.E.C., and at all times your interests will be my primary concern.

In order to give our rapidly growing faculty more equitable representation I will take whatever steps are necessary to seat a second Engineer on the S.E.C.

I will promote greater participation on the many campus activities that are of special interest to Engineers.

I will investigate the possibilities of having open S.E.C. meetings and try to develop greater student interest in this organization.

Don Ferrier

Pen Sketch

We, the undersigned, believe that Don Ferrier has the ability and the experience necessary for the position of S.E.C. Representative for Engineering. He has proven this by his excellent work in the following activities:

(1) Plumbers' Ball, Chairman 1958, (2) McGill Conference on World Affairs Committee 1958, (3) Winter (Continued on page 6)

Maurice LeBlanc

The keynote of my platform is PRESTIGE. The Engineers' importance is not fully recognized because we do not have sufficient prestige. If elected, I will initiate any projects and ideas which will boost the Engineers' prestige. The S.E.C. Representative is in a position to do this sort of thing. He cannot render a final decision on the projects. But, to take the initiative in promoting them would make the Engineers' importance felt. Thus, this is the best representation the Engineers could have. Vote LeBlanc for Prestige.

Maurice A. LeBlanc

Pen Sketch

Maurice, a former McGee boy, has the desirable tendency of taking things seriously. Although he has not had extensive experience on many committees, he is nevertheless a very ambitious student who would give the Engineers the prestige they should be getting. It is indeed desirable that an ambitious student with some qualifications represent us on the S.E.C. It is the role of the experienced students to implement the plans launched by (Continued on page 6)

COMMERCE

Nick Asimakopulos

The S.E.C. as all students realize, is the governing body responsible for the functioning of all activities of the Students' Society. It is the duty of each member of the S.E.C. to represent the interests of the student body which elects him, and to act in a manner beneficial to the Students' Society as a whole.

Thus, I can only promise, if elected, to see that all students have an opportunity to gain an insight into the administration of the S.E.C. and to represent the interests of the School of Commerce.

Nick Asimakopulos

Pen Sketch

Our knowledge of Nick Asimakopulos' character and ability, lead us to support him for election to the S.E.C.

Since entering McGill, from Mount Royal High School, Nick has worked on almost every campus activity from intramural sports to the Winter Carnival. He has participated in interfraternity debating; acted as Recruiting and Interviewing Officer for the University Naval Training Divisions; and is a member of the Students' Union Board of Managers. He was also Chairman of this year's victorious Commerce Blood Drive, and has served on the Commerce Undergraduate Society executive.

His mature judgement and enthusiasm make him the ideal Commerce S.E.C. representative.

Peter Cundill

Stephen Vineberg
Jackie Magnan
Don Budge

Seymour Cramer

The aim of every S.E.C. member should be to represent the opinions of his Faculty, and vote accordingly. To that end, I will maintain a close liaison with the C.U.S. On matters of policy, before the S.E.C., I will consult with as many Commerce Students as possible before voting.

Features of my platform are as follows:

1) To ensure that the C.U.S. will get adequate funds from the S.E.C. to run all its activities. 2) To have open S.E.C. meetings so that students may hear, and evaluate actual discussion on business. 3) To work for a new Union, and to maintain the present one till then. 4) Greater use of the Executive Applications Programme so that more students will be active on Campus.

Seymour Cramer

Pen Sketch

At present Sy is Associate Editor of the McGill Annual, and as such is well acquainted with events around McGill. He was on the Commerce Blood Committee in 1956 and has participated in various Campus Activities. He is intensely interested in promoting Commerce Spirit. His Platform and his Campus activities make Sy the man for Commerce Representative on the S.E.C.

Myer Signer

Myer Signer is a student in his fourth year at McGill. He has completed one year of Arts, two years of Commerce, and is now in his third year Commerce, majoring in Economics.

Myer is also completing his fourth year in Tau Epsilon Rhi Fraternity where he has held many positions including Social Chairman, Master, Chapter Warden, Alumni Relations, twice Awards Chairman, and is now Vice President.

Other activities include an intense interest in Canadian history and Politics — he is a member of the Liberal Club; and the Combined Jewish Appeal — he was a District Chairman twice.

Off campus, Myer is a partner in a thriving Fashion Jewellery business, his future profession, however, is to be in the Fields of Insurance. He is also an Officer in The Ordnance Corps of the Canadian Army.

We, his supporters, feel that with his experience in organizational work and representation, and his desire to improve not only the Union, but the Commons Room as well, Myer Signer would best represent the Faculty of Commerce in the Students' Executive Council.

MEDICINE

James Butler

There are two considerations which lead me to desire the position of Medical Undergraduate Society Representative to the Students' Executive Council.

Being first and foremost a member of McGill University this position would give me the responsibility and authority to help in dealing with the Campus and its problems in an attempt to bring about some revisions which seem very necessary.

In defense of the former consideration, I should like to point out that in an attempt to maintain and foster a cosmopolitan University, we are in the end destroying the very thing which is necessary to retain this atmosphere. We are placing too much emphasis on the small adhesive groups and not enough emphasis on attempting to bring the campus together.

As Medical Undergraduate Society Representative I cannot hope to improve on the effort with which our case was presented to the Students' Society. I can hope to further understanding between the other undergraduates and ourselves concerning this problem of additional money which has arisen not by choice, but has instead originated partially by circumstance, and partially by reason of necessity in the arrangement of our course. Withdrawal from SEC, were it in our power to do so, would not be considered or favored by myself.

James A. Butler

Fred Lowy

By far the most important campus issue, for medical students, is our attempt to change the manner in which the MUS is financed. Despite the temporary setback this fall, an overwhelming majority of medical students has clearly indicated its desire to continue this attempt at all levels. The major task of the representative from Medicine is to carry on the campaign within the SEC: we are certain that we have a strong case, but many students at McGill remain unconvinced; to try and remedy this situation is my primary aim.

In our fight, for what we regard as a just cause, we have unwillingly antagonized certain elements of the student population. This is a regrettable but correctable situation: I will do my utmost to dispel any hostility towards medical students evoked by an improper understanding of our aims.

Having served on the SEC as an undergraduate, I feel that I can understand both sides of the issue. I hope to use this experience to attain our two objectives: 1) a fair share of our Student Society fees, and 2) restoration of good relations between medicine and the rest of the campus.

Editorials

We Are The --- Generation

The editorial columns of the Daily have often been criticized because they are too "critical" and not positive enough, and because they do not show a sufficient appreciation of the many good things that there are in this school, and in the wide world. It is true that we have often been critical, and perhaps at times we have been unreasonably so, yet there are reasons, and a method to our madness, and we wish to explain.

We are all still students at this place, and collectively, we face certain problems. How are we meeting them? Do we understand the problems we face? Is this a good time to be alive? When history departments of the future will look back at this period of history, what will be the comments they will make about it. Will we be the Lost generation or the Silent generation or the Beat generation or the no-nonsense generation, or the Good or the Evil or the Naive or the Doomed. What are we? What are we doing in this world? Is there anything which is important to us? What do we believe? if we believe anything.

We might think we are a very unfortunate generation. We started our careers just about the beginning of the war, and are the first generation in history to grow up with the awareness that it is possible to destroy the whole world. We are reaching maturity in a treacherous atmosphere of shifting uncertain truths expressed by words that have become more important than the ideas they are supposed to represent. Though we are wealthier and there are more of us educated than ever, still we are uncertain about what to do and believe. How many students could answer the question; "What is important to you?" If there were a war would it be possible for any thinking individual to rationally fight for a "cause"? Are there any good things that we are capable of doing and believing. In the 30's there were social struggles and injustices to fight; these still exist, but somehow they do not seem as important as perhaps they should. It is now unfashionable and untenable to be an idealist, and to be a realist in this reality of ours is unpalatable. We are not a constructive force, and collectively we have no spirit of love of life. We feel strongly about nothing, and do nothing. When some of us do feel strongly and think intelligently, we produce "My Fur Lady" and are applauded widely and wildly for something which represents, actually, a stark condemnation of some of the most fundamental features of our way of life. We have produced no happy literature, and we turn to Hollywood and TV for titillation. We are apathetic and emotionally sloppy. The leaders of the generation which has preceded us have bungled their jobs, yet we persist in doing just what they do and we wear what they wear and think what they think, and because their way of life is essentially alien to us we accept it only half-heartedly, and yet still we cannot develop our own. And we do not appear, even, to be trying.

We are preoccupied with security, and that is not necessarily a bad thing, but when this preoccupation is combined with lethargy and a feeling of cosmic "laissez-faire" then it is fatal. We have begun to worry now about Russia and to fear her very much. Russia has been successful in giving her people something to believe. We would loathe the belief she gives, and we could not accept it, but we have none of our own. We must try to remember that whether we want to or not, we will have to call the tune in 25 years from now, and we will have to make important decisions. We do not seem to be preparing for them now. We quietly gather knowledge and theories and impressions of our elders and what seems to be happening is that we are feeling more and more futility. Where is there, for us, the hope and controlled joie de vivre which makes life rich and useful. We seek it in love and marry early and the divorce rate keeps rising. We seek it in sex, in the strippers on Stanley St., but we don't seem to learn to appreciate sexual things more. Religion has failed us because the world has become too complex for such a simple idea to solve its problems. We are vaguely dissatisfied but can't see the big problems for the small pleasures. We do not stand up very strong.

When we write what may seem to be sad words in the Daily, we do not hate anyone nor do we wish controversy for its sake. We are trying to think our uncertainties away, to find some standards we may follow. We believe that in the long run it may be easier to reject many bad and outmoded things now, rather than later, when we shall have become immune to them through familiarity as one may become immune to some diseases.

Letters To The Editor

The S.E.C. Answers...

Dear Sir:

The S.E.C. has never denied the useful purpose of the National Club on the McGill Campus. Unlike Mr. Sinson, it does not feel that the usefulness of a Club is proportional to the amount of money it requires to run its activities. Mr. Sinson's verbose letter of protest deserves our "exposition".

Firstly, the Cosmo Club failed to submit a budget to the S.E.C. within the prescribed delay. Constitutionally, the S.E.C. was under no obligation to accept this budget, yet it was submitted to Council and examined on its merits. The Council did not feel that the Cosmo Club deserved a grant due to the nature of its activities, which are exclusively social. The proposed program of the Cosmo Club was as follows: —

- (I) Activities Night
- (II) General Meeting and Members' Party

The omission of one large party of a total of five would have allowed the Cosmo Club to break even financially.

Secondly, the S.E.C. is of the opinion that Clubs not of universal appeal to the student body should make an effort to meet their expenditures, particularly for social activities, from membership dues and admission fees to such events.

Thirdly, within reasonable limits, the S.E.C. has always tried to meet the demands of such Clubs for funds required to sponsor educational activities.

Fourthly, the success of Clubs should not depend primarily upon the size of the budget, but rather upon their ability to organize an appealing program not derived through extravagant expenditures. The West Indian Society which Mr. Sinson cites as fulfilling a very useful role on Campus, does not receive aid from the S.E.C. nor does it demand any, yet it carries on a successful practical and social program.

Pool And Publicity

Dear Sir:

Last week the Union "Publicity and Promotions" committee sponsored a farce known as "ladies pool night." The purpose of this venture was supposedly to publicize the Union. If these busybodies must find some sort of an outlet for their energies they can perhaps find something more constructive than sponsoring a pool night for McGill females who obviously have no desire to play pool. There were about four females present and several others of the Graphic Arts Committee were later induced to come in and pose for a picture.

A much more urgent matter the Union Board of managers should look into is the food in the cafeteria and grillroom. Both of these places are not as clean as is desirable and the food is often cold. The Cafeteria is the only place in town where you have to let the water drip out of your tray before you pick it up. There are innumerable improvements of a constructive nature which could be made, and would help make the Union the centre of student activity much quicker than a cheap publicity stunt of this nature.

Shaughnessy's Line:

"the doll"

How Shaughnessy, immersed in the high ecstatic rapture of love at first sight, looked twice. How Hoony was rebuffed. Of certain events that transpired at the T.N.K. house. How Hoony obtained his revenge. How Shaughnessy mourned for the buried Eden. How, through free association, a name for streams of flowing water became extended to comprise all bodies of that same transparent chemical.

Some hint of morning in the way she got on the bus made Shaughnessy think the world was what he once had dreamed it might be. He saw a maze of windspun, honey-coloured hair, shoulder-length and flowing like a river under an oak tree in full October sunlight. Not even the stubble-jawed throng on the front of the bus at rush hour could dim her radiance — just by being there, she seemed to preclude the baser elements of the universe from her immediate presence. She moved lightly to the rear en arrière s'il vous plait, her drab companion following — the kind of foil who seem inevitably to accompany the queens of the world on their outings — and stood beside Hoony, holding the rail with long, delicate fingers. Shaughnessy noticed that her eyes were grey, with a feline fleck of green in them. Then he noticed that he was staring at her openly, and resorted to the subterfuge of staring at her reflection.

She took his mind away, somehow, past "My Bank-Ma Banque" and the sad-eyed commuters, to a hill-top, to Eden in the morning, to a sky-blue Jag 140 going down the highway and her hair streaming on the wind in a long comb of running fire behind her head. "The loose train of thy amber dropping hair," he mused. But he mused it very quietly and no one heard him. Beside him, the man of action was getting down to brass tacks.

Hoony tapped the princess gently on the shoulder, and indicated a seat behind them. A trace of disdainful petulance marred her regal voice as she nodded coolly, "Thank you, we're getting off at Guy."

Finished with Hoony, she turned back to the foil, "Oh, and I meant to tell you who phoned last night — you'd never guess — Billy Rivers." The foil shrieked, "Oh, no, not again!" The princess gathered momentum, "The tanks are having their big party this Saturday, and he wanted me to go. It was so funny," she laughed smartly at the recollection, "I picked up the phone and he said, 'Hello its me,'. Of course, I knew who it was right away, but I said, 'Who is me?' and he said, 'What do you mean, who is me?' and I asked him if that was his name, and he said no, it was an expression of indignance, only he had the wrong word, he tried indignity and that wouldn't do either, so he got embarrassed and blurted out about the party right away, and I told him I couldn't go. "What did you tell him?" asked the foil excitedly.

"I said I had to hand a term paper in on Monday, and that I was simply desperate to get a good mark this time, and he said, 'Oh, that's too bad,' and then — most people would have hung up — he spent about half an hour asking me what I'd been doing — he seems to get some perverted pleasure from hearing how much fun I have when I'm not out with him — so I was telling him about all the boys I'd been out with, and right in the middle he shouted 'Indignation,' just like that — well, it was so typical of Billy — he just couldn't bear to have me think he didn't know the right word — and I went on telling him about the dates I'd had, and he kept saying, 'That's nice,' without sounding very sincere, and then he finally got tired of it and said he hoped I'd get my term paper alright, and I almost asked him what term paper, before I remembered."

The lighting system dimmed as the bus wheezed away from a stop, some of her radiance seeming to fade with it. He could see himself and Billy and all the other bumbling squares of humankind being ground to frustrated smithereens under her delicate thumb.

"You're missing your stop," said Hoony, waving his hand politely toward the window. "She ignored him, frigidly majestic, as Rue Guy Guy Street vanished into the night.

"Poor boy," the foil filled the silence, "he must be so funny."

"Oh he is," said the princess, almost whispering now, "But the worst of it is, he asked me to this rushing party last October, and I told him I couldn't go that night, and then Bob McIver asked me out to a party the same night, only it was the Tappa Nu Keg party, and I'd always thought Billy was a Phelta Thi so I said yes. And then when we turned up at the party — I almost had a bird — the first person we saw was poor Billy. Well!" The foil, collapsing, squealed "Oh, no. What did you say? Did he have a girl with him?"

The princess whispered rapidly, "I think she was still in high school." An arched eyebrow flicked that girl into oblivion. "But it was awful, I couldn't even remember why I told him I couldn't go until he asked me if my aunt was better, and what was worse, Billy's a brother in the house, and Bob was only being rushed. And Billy took too much to drink, and made an awful fool of himself — he got this tube of cake icing and squirted it all over everyone, and got it all over Bob's sweater, and then made a big show of lending Bob his sweater and told him to leave it with me — so obvious — and he'd pick it up later. And I made Bob give it back to him before we left. It was simply awful." They both revelled silently in the awfulness of the situation.

Hoony, with innocent malice, queried, "Did you hear Bill's girl gave him the shaft? Supposed to be quite a doll too — at least as far as looks go — but strictly negative in everything else. Personality like a cedar swamp in March. Type that would be a real queen if she didn't think she was one already..." His voice trailed sweetly off.

There was a flash of honey-coloured hair, the barrier swung wide, the air-pump hissed like a god in the machinery breaking wind, and the princess swept into the winter night and out of their lives forever. The foil stumbled perplexedly after her, wondering why they had got out twelve blocks before their stop.

"Swish," thought Shaughnessy. And thought too of the lost illusion of morning, of the last real princess, sweet and young and radiant and buried long ago in Eden's garden. And of poor, halting Billy, whoever he might be.

"Hey," he said, jabbing Hoony in the ribs, "do you really know this guy Billy?"

"Know him?" said Hoony, deeply offended. "Good old Bill? Do I know him?" continued Hoony, deeply moved by this assault on his dignity. "The nerve of some people's children. Imagine asking me if I know Bill Waters."

The Daily Interviews

John J. Sommers

by Leonard Rosmarin

Without any doubt, one of the busiest gentlemen at McGill this moment is Mr. John Sommers, director of the English Department's production "Antigone." Moulding such a difficult work to the point where it can be presented successfully, and giving courses in English literature at the same time requires an enormous amount of work, which explains why Mr. Sommers has been getting only a few hours sleep a night.

I met with Mr. Sommers in one of the most unlikely of places: the ticket table on the stair landing near the Arts Building basement. With all the racket going on at 10 am, we could barely make ourselves understood. When someone finally came to relieve Mr. Sommers we took ourselves to the Make Up room in back of the Moyse Hall stage, and carried on from there.

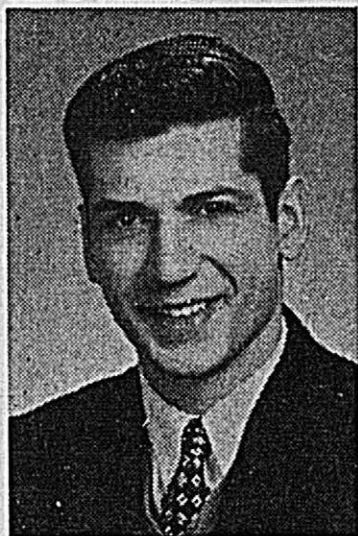

This will probably surprise you, but Mr. Sommers informed me quite openly that he doesn't have the faintest idea as to whether there was a decisive moment in his life when he realized the Theatre would be his career. However, as an undergraduate at Carleton College, Minnesota, where he majored in History, Mr. Sommers did manage to cram in a lot of acting. After receiving his degree, he spent a year at the University of Bristol as a Fulbright scholar, where he studied Greek Theatre under the eminent authority, H.D.F. Kitto. If you may be wondering as I was, how one goes about getting such a scholarship, Mr. Sommers has only this to say:

"You just apply and hope to be chosen."

Before coming to McGill, Mr. Sommers spent two years at Amherst College, and in 1956 he "invested some money", and established a summer theatre in Northampton, Massachusetts, where his company puts on works by such playwrights as Shaw, Shakespeare, and Wilde.

Many people involved in the theatre profess a liking for a particular aspect of this art, and Mr. Sommers'

John J. Sommers

"... Sophocles is vital"

favorite field of activity is directing. Although he likes acting very much, and hopes to do more in the future, directing, to put the matter in his own words, "involves you with the mind of the playwright and the heart of the play itself". This remark led me to ask Mr. Sommers what particular reasons made him choose Antigone as his so-called "maiden" production at McGill.

"I like the play," he replied matter of factly. "It's not reasonable to direct a play I don't like. Antigone hasn't been done for a long time; it needs to be done because the message it conveys is very contemporary."

As for future productions, Mr. Sommers would especially like to produce a work by the German playwright Brecht, for the simple reason that he is different and has much to offer.

Many people have noticed that the theatre has been in the midst of a boom these past few years, and so I asked Mr. Sommers if he thought the modern theatre could look forward to a healthy future despite television. He thinks it can.

"The theatre, he elaborated, has always been a perpetual invalid; just when it's about to die, it somehow survives. We hope there will always be enough interest so that it can compete against television.

Among the great playwrights past and present Mr. Sommers has several favorites, namely Sophocles, Shaw, and Shakespeare because "they are not just moral messages, but interesting works of art."

"Would you like to write a play?", I asked curiously.

"No comment," was the swift answer.

Towards the end of our talk, Mr. Sommers informed me that besides directing the two annual productions of the English Department, and giving a course in Continental Drama, he also has two classes in English

100C. I shuddered slightly when he mentioned "100C", and since we were on this subject, I informed Mr. Sommers that many Freshmen regard this compulsory course as a most unpleasant dose of medicine. "I don't blame them", he replied quite frankly.

Mr. Sommers, this remark has won for you the esteem of McGill's Freshmen, and we are sure they would like to join with us in wishing you the best of luck with Antigone tonight.

ARCHITECTURE

Sydney Godel

If elected I shall do my utmost as the representative of the School of Architecture. Above all, I should like to look into the parking problem at McGill as we are about to lose our present facilities.

Recently a Member of Parliament spoke about the abolition of university students' income taxes, and I would like to see the S.E.C. help speed up its fulfilment.

Lastly, I shall strive for better student participation in school events and we can start on this by getting out and voting.

Syd Godel

Pen Sketch

We the undersigned, who have been in close association with Syd Godel, have found him to be an intelligent, conscientious and devoted person.

He has taken part in many campus wide activities and has established himself as an accredited leader in many fields, but most notably so as the School's athletic representative. Due to Syd's keen interest an extensive sports program has been carried out with this being instrumental in initiating that great spirit that is prevalent in the School of Architecture today.

Thus we believe that it is only proper that a man of Syd's calibre should represent the Architectural Undergraduate Society on the Students' Executive Council.

Brian Hall

The following platform is designed to meet the specifications of the School of Architecture, and is, therefore, subject to your "crits". However, it has been pre-stressed and is guaranteed to last the length of my proposed term of office.

Foundation Material: Solid, sensible, and sincere representation of our School. Structural system: Independence of the School in such Campus-wide contests as the Blood Drive. Roof: Proposal of some form of student Income Tax exemption, possibly through NFCUS. Interior, Protection of your interests in general Campus problems and policies; e.g. Student Directories, parking. Exterior Finish: An unhesitating desire to uphold the name of our School.

H. B. Hall

Pen Sketch

Brian is a familiar figure around the School, having lived (sic) there for over two years now. He has taken a keen interest in the A.U.S., having been secretary and now a Committee chairman. He is more than willing to spend the maximum amount of his time protecting your best interests in the S.E.C., since it is a well-known fact that he does as little as possible at all other times.

Matthias Welchner

The A.U.S. needs a representative who knows the views of his fellow students and who has convictions strong enough to express them convincingly. He should not be afraid to express them however controversial they may be. I sincerely hope you will agree that I am this person.

I am for: (1) well - publicized, open S.E.C. meetings, (2) N.F.C.U. S., (3) non-taxation of university students.

Matthias Welchner

Pen Sketch

Matt Welchner is stalwart, daring, noble, dashing and in the midst of growing a handsome beard. His reputation among the fairer sex is merely a matter of history. His diversity in campus activity runs the gamut from the Choral Society to the Judo Club and he has served on the executive of the Architectural Undergraduate Society. At present he is Treasurer of the McGill Film Society and is considered by many to be the only truly sober member of that group.

We (collectively) have never known Matt to shirk responsibility or to shun controversy. He has proven a guiding spirit and a sympathetic counsellor to us all (individually).

Indeed it is with sincere regret that we view his impending departure from our happy circle to take up his post as S.E.C. representative for the Architectural Undergraduate Society.

Smoke Signals

by Eric Rennert
Sports Editor

Granted the space is lacking, but the spirit is bubbling over, so here we go again into a long descriptive discourse about our beloved Redmen teams, basketball and hockey editions. Things have been pretty slow of late, but the major intercollegiate sports have hopped back into the limelight for better or for worse, thus giving us an excuse to step out on a dangerous limb and make some sort of 'expert' prognostications.

Basketballers Better — But ...

Joe Anderson has apparently assembled a better hoop squad than the one that had a dismal 1-9 record last season. The exhibition trek into the United States should serve as a fairly accurate barometer for the fortunes of our 'B'ball men, but quite frankly we can't see anything too promising happening between now and the end of the season in March.

Fortunately big 'Jut' Cross will be able to take his regular turn in the pivot spot, for Coach Anderson, as he'll be making all the trips with the team. Last year 'Jut' had to stay home for these games, and his absence had a great deal to do with the basketballers putting on such miserable showings on the road.

The Redmen will play an exciting and interesting brand of ball this season, but how much spoiling they can manage to do remains to be seen.

Hockey Prospects Only Fair

Hockeywise the Redmen appear to be in better shape than their basketball brothers, although some people may be surprised once the regular season gets rolling. We figure the Redmen to be just a shade weaker than they were at this time last year, but we could be wrong (aren't we always?). The other clubs in the league seem to be a good deal stronger, with the exception of the Varsity Blues. But the Blues of last year were a fairly potent bunch, and they should be the same this winter what with a steady stream of former Junior 'A' puckchasers lining up with them courtesy of the Toronto Leafs.

We call the Blues by a narrow margin, and over who we won't say.

Football To Fore With Philosophers

"It is not an accomplishment in after life to be an ex-football player." — Paul Gallico.

"Enthusiasm is the whole point of college football. That's what it is all about." — Charles (Bud) Wilkinson, football coach at the U. of Oklahoma.

"To watch a football game is to be in prolonged neurotic doubt as to what you're seeing. It is more like an emergency happening at a distance than a game. I don't wonder that spectators take to drink." — Jacques Barzun.

"Football has become so complicated, the student will find it a recreation to go to classes." — T. S. Eliot.

"The football season's on the wane. December doth approach. The frost is on the pump and the blast is on the coach." — Lenny Anderson, sports writer.

"Football is a game that can't be played with diagrams on a tablecloth; you have to get down on the ground with the other fellow and find out who's the better man." — Steve Owen, former coach of the NY (Football) Giants.

"As I emphatically disbelieve in seeing Harvard or any other college turn out molly-coddles instead of vigorous men, I may add that I do not in the least object to a sport because it is rough." — Theodore Roosevelt.

"I will not permit 30 men to travel 300 miles merely to agitate a bag of wind." — Andrew W. White, President of Cornell 1873.

"The football mounted to the pitch/Of the lark's flight, or shaped a rainbow curve/ Aloft in prospect of the shouting field." — Wordsworth.

"I've been kicked, pummeled, spat on and cursed at, and generally abused on some of the good days I had running the ball. But somehow all this individualized attention I got from the opposition made me feel kind of proud — proud that they distinguished me as 'the guy to get'." — Red Grange.

"God is always on the side which has the better football coach." — Heywood Brown.

"Take a look at the sports pages and tell me how many teams won football games last Saturday. Very few, according to the headlines. Oh, yes, teams went out and basted, captured, clipped, dipped, dropped, downed, drubbed, and drowned, edged, grabbed, nipped and knocked; overpowered, punched, routed, ripped, rolled over, rapped, wrecked, romped, rambled, and rumbled, pass end over, turned on and upset opponents — but very few went out and won the old ball game." — Stan Brotherton, journalist.

Redmen To Play At Laval Tonight

EN ROUTE TO QUEBEC — The hockey Redmen are on their way to the Citadel City to tackle Jean-Paul Poulin's Laval squad this evening. This will be the Seniors' baptism in Intercollegiate competition for this season.

The Redmen, second place finishers last season, and the top college club in the province, are, at this stage of the season, slightly weakened over last year. So far, the club has definitely felt the absence of Ross Hughes, Warren Allmand and Jack McMullan. And to top it off, the other intercollegiate clubs have not stood pat and have strengthened their clubs considerably.

For tonight's game, coach Robillard has taken along three complete lines, five defencemen and goalie Michel Joyal. Rocky will use Dick Baltzan, Leo Konyk and Doug McGregor on the first unit; Joe Irvin, Ivan Saunders and Keith Lawes on the second line; and three of Eldon Horsman, Daraugh Van Plew, Sandy Sanzelius and Frank Mahoney on the last unit. His defencemen will be Len Sigurdson, Don MacDonald, Doug Maule, Terry Dingle and Bruce Smith.

The Laval boys are much the same team as last year. One of last season's best offensive trios in the league is returning intact to the Quebecers. Pierre Raymond and Michel Legace ended up one-two in the scoring last season and linemate Andre Arsenault ended up not far behind.

The Redmen do not perform at Winter Stadium before next Friday, December 13, when they tangle with the University of Montreal Carabins in a game in which the Maplewood boys will be the host team.

Dartmouth Boxers At Athletics Night

The McGill Boxing Team which is slated to meet Dartmouth at Athletics Night, on December 7, will be composed of a well experienced group of fighters.

Coach Burt Light is expecting great things from the team this year. He therefore, expects his boxers to get off to a fast start in their first competition of the season by winning the team title.

Frank Blum and Max Lambie, both experienced boxers, will represent McGill in the 130 and 135 weight classes. Pete Thompson who is regarded as an excellent prospect for the intercollegiate title is slated for the 140 weight class. Denny Repole, last year's intercollegiate champ, is expected to win his bout in the 150 weight class.

Although Bill Briggs is new to the McGill team he is not lacking experience and is an excellent prospect at 155 pounds. John Fawcett, former San Francisco State College Champ will be fighting in the 145 weight class. Pierre Raymond, the team captain and 1956 intercollegiate champ will represent McGill in the 160 class. Harry Weissman and Herman Kennedy, both former Golden Gloves finalists will weigh in at 165 and 170 against Dartmouth.

Ossie Downs who has held three different intercollegiate boxing championships is ready to go at 175 pounds. Don Kramer who won his bout last year against Dartmouth will be out to repeat this in the 185 lb. class. Dick Hinton who is an all-around athlete is considered to be one of the top prospects on the team. He has been called upon to replace heavyweight Eddie Drew who is unable to compete this year.

Not much is known about the members of this year's Dartmouth Team but going on past experience they will be represented by a strong group of boxers who will give a good account of themselves.
